

Content Development Solutions

What We Do —

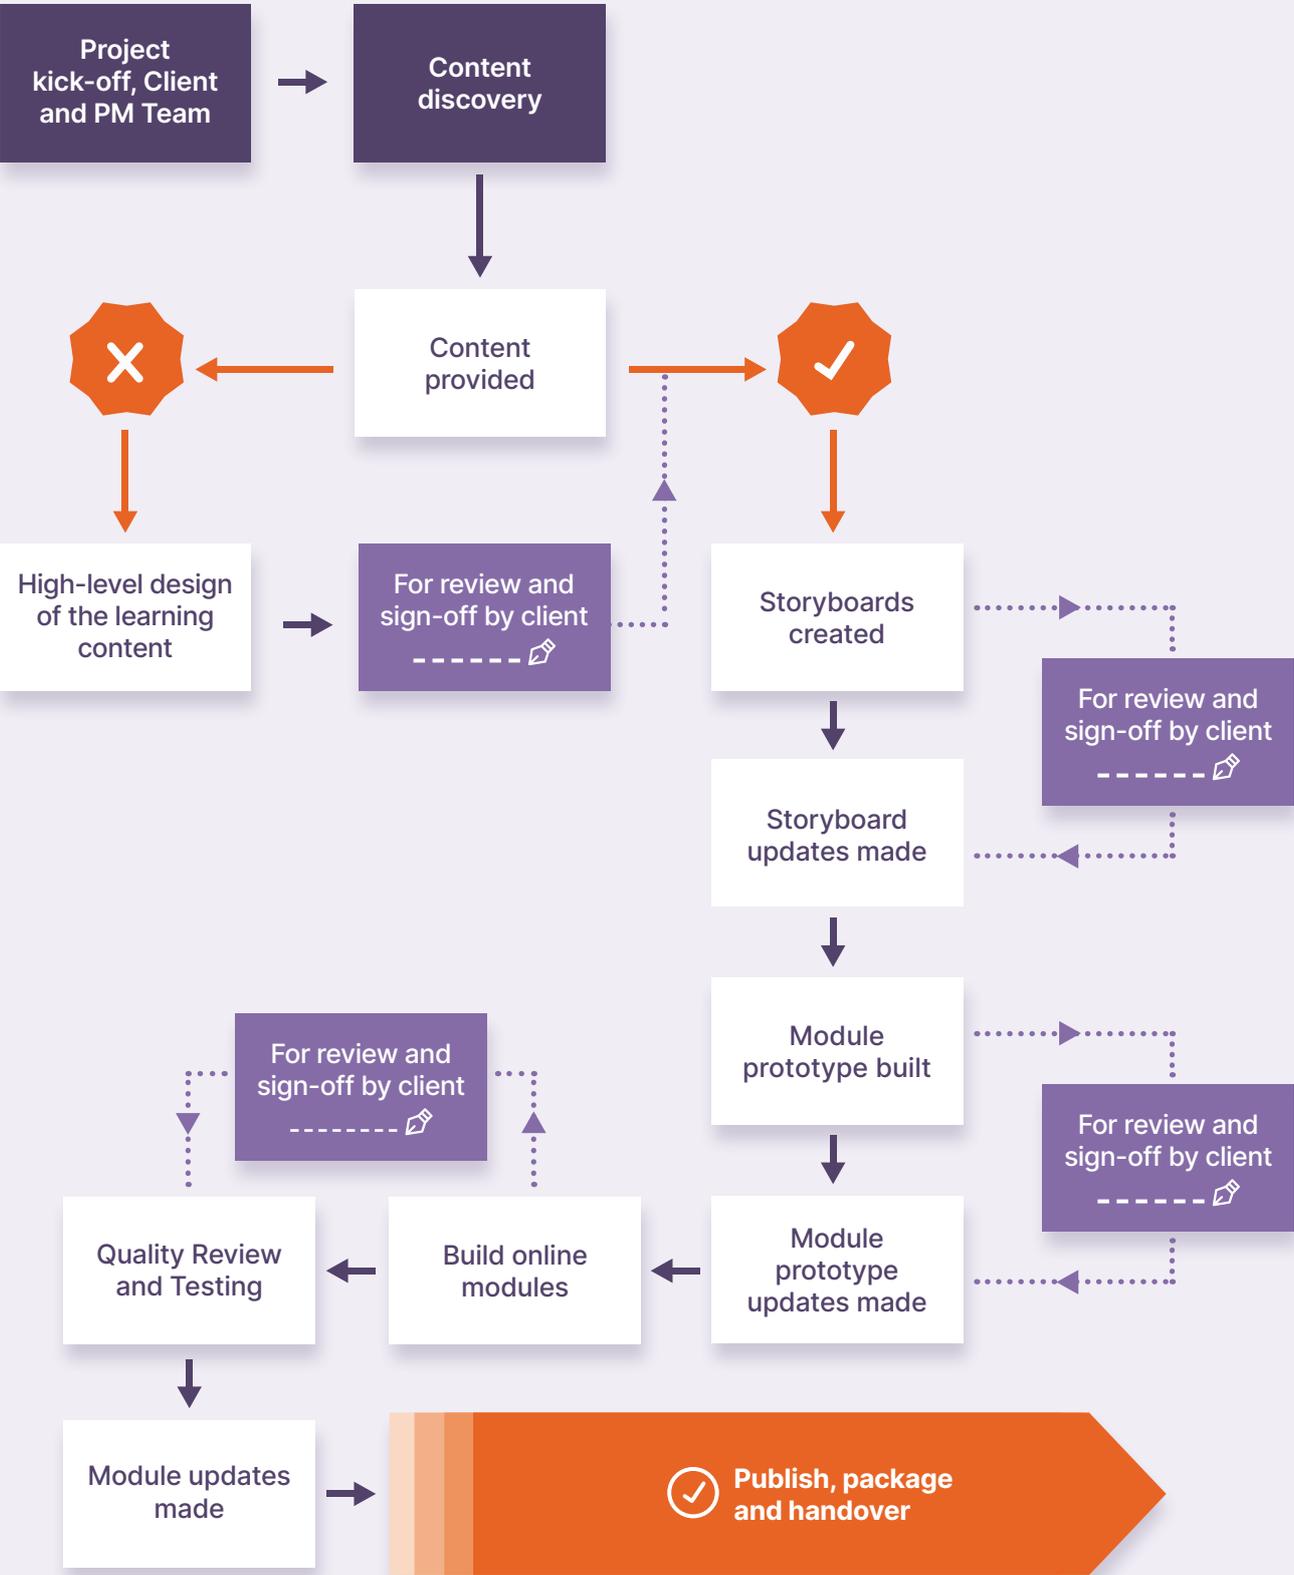

eWorks has been developing and delivering innovative, cost-effective eLearning for 25 years. We work with our clients to create custom solutions tailored to your needs.

Whether you're updating existing content, looking for an out-of-the-box solution, or starting from scratch, eWorks offers expert advice and assistance.

We collaborate with you throughout the course design process using our rapid learning design framework, which involves co-design workshops and a well-established end-to-end design and development process.

How We Do It

Our Expertise —

The eWorks project team develop learning solutions that place learner needs, motivations, experiences and challenges at the centre of the design process. We create a final product that is designed to connect with learners while achieving your intended outcomes.

Our team are experts in:

Learning design	Assessment design	Compliance to a range of standards	Accessibility to WCAG 2.1 AA	Rapid development tools
Responsive design	SCORM packaging	Graphic and visual design	Multimedia	User interface design

Our Capability —

What do you already have? What do you need now and for the future? You may already have a great deal of content, or none at all. In any situation, we look forward to planning and working with you to either develop your entire system, or to add to or improve upon your existing eLearning solutions.

It may be that fully interactive SCORM packages are best suited to you and your learners, or perhaps you would prefer content built directly into your Learning Management System.

We have decades of experience in both situations and a full range of development software such as Articulate Storyline and Captivate.

If you already have a Learning Management System, we can ensure that you develop content appropriate to it. If not, we can help you consider the alternatives and offer you a complete solution in the form of Open LMS.

If you need a provider who has experience and consults effectively, has proven capability and performance, and delivers outstanding quality products, then call us – our favourite conversation is about your eLearning needs.
